National Philanthropy Day®
Change the World with a Giving Heart

National Philanthropy Day 2016
Welcome

Welcome to the Association of Fundraising Professionals Golden Gate Chapter’s celebration of National Philanthropy Day. Today is an auspicious occasion for three reasons. This year concludes the 45th anniversary of the Golden Gate Chapter of AFP.

Second, today’s luncheon marks the 30th Anniversary of National Philanthropy Day. It is an amazing, inspiring day to hear the stories of those people who, through their commitment to philanthropy, have made the world a better place. If you are a novice, and this is your first time attending, prepared to be moved. If you are a veteran, you will once again be reminded why this work is so important.

The third and most important reason why today is special is simply that we are in the good company of amazing people. It is easy to become a little jaded when one follows current events. But after you hear their stories about why they are so passionate about their work, your faith in human decency and kindness will be restored.

Today’s honorees are a stellar group who range from those who have dedicated their entire lives to social justice to one who is just beginning her philanthropic journey. They are a reminder about the impact of the work and why it is important to honor those who have been so dedicated and selfless in their mission.

Thank you for taking the time to have lunch with us and to be inspired.

Warm regards,

Last year marked Dr. Renel Brooks-Moon’s 31st anniversary in broadcasting. A Bay Area native and Mills College graduate, she has been heard over the years on KFRC, KMEL, and KISS-FM, and seen on KRON 4, CBS 5, and Comcast SportsNet Bay Area. She can now be heard every Sunday afternoon hosting radio station KBLX’s oldies show “the Soul School Sunday.”

In 2000, Renel became the Public Address Announcer for the San Francisco Giants at Pac Bell Park (now AT&T Park). She was recognized by the Major League Baseball Hall of Fame as the first female announcer of a championship game in any professional sport during the 2002 World Series and is now the proud owner of three World Series rings for Giants’ wins.

Renel’s many accolades and awards include induction into the Bay Area Radio Hall of Fame in 2008 and being honored at “The Great Ladies of San Francisco Media” event in August 2013.

She is a founding member of Friends of Faith, Inc., a nonprofit organization that supports underserved and uninsured Bay Area breast cancer patients. Additionally, she serves on the advisory board of the Oakland Interfaith Gospel Choir and is a supporter of Glide Memorial Methodist Church, the Glide Foundation, and the Giants Community Fund.

She has received numerous awards for her community activism, including the 2007 Florence Crittendon Children and Families Services Award, the 2010 Trailblazer Award from the National Coalition of 100 Black Women, San Francisco, and the 2010 100 Black Men of the Bay Area Lifetime Achievement Award.

We are proud to have her as our Master of Ceremonies for this year’s National Philanthropy Day.

Philanthropy is a powerful and inspiring force for good.

We thank you for joining us in honoring and celebrating this important work.
Each year the Association of Fundraising Professionals Golden Gate Chapter marks one day to celebrate the spirit of giving by recognizing exemplars in philanthropy and social change. Awards are presented to individuals and institutions whose giving to the community inspires all of us. They are nominated by the community and selected by a committee of volunteers who are leaders in the world of philanthropy. We are pleased to honor the following 2016 award recipients.
Salesforce.org is a nonprofit social enterprise with a mission to empower its community of stakeholders to accelerate impact in a whole new way.

Salesforce.org impacts thousands of organizations and the millions of people it serves by delivering the world’s best nonprofit and educational technology solutions at affordable rates. It also inspires employee giving by matching their donations and driving volunteer engagement in the community. And it leverages a unique self-sustaining model to generously re-invest the revenue generated back into the community through strategic grants focused on education and workforce development.

Since 1999, Salesforce technology has powered more than 29,000 nonprofit and education institutions. Salesforce and its philanthropic entities have provided more than $128 million in grants. And Salesforce employees have logged more than 1.6 million volunteer hours around the world.

Locally, salesforce.org has invested a total of $22.5 million to the Oakland and San Francisco Unified school districts to help promote literacy in STEM (science, technology, engineering, math) in middle school and career readiness in high school. The partnership, which is now in its fourth year, resulted in SFUSD becoming the first school district nationwide to establish a computer science curriculum for all grades. It also enabled the district to hire 19 full-time coaches and teachers for math and technology instruction and reduce class sizes, increasing eighth grade GPAs from 2.85 in the 2014–2015 school year to 3.05 in the 2015–2016 school year.

The organization also established the Force for Change grants program in 2010 and has since supported dozens of organizations around the world, creating technologies to address some of the planet’s most urgent problems. This year, salesforce.org announced a 300 percent increase in the program, providing $4 million in Force for Change grants to focus on increasing social impact by supporting the innovative use of technology in the global nonprofit and education sectors.
Aimee Durfee is a senior program officer at the Y&H Soda Foundation in Moraga. Named for its founders’ initials, the foundation focuses on developing programs to help lift individuals and families in Contra Costa and Alameda counties out of poverty.

As a graduate of Mount Holyoke College with a law degree from UC Berkeley’s Boalt Hall School of Law, Aimee has focused her career on social-justice issues. Before joining Y&H in 2012, she worked on funding and policy at United Way of the Bay Area, Transgender Law Center, Insight Center for Community Economic Development, and Equal Rights Advocates. Her current focus is on Y&H’s initiatives to help families achieve economic success.

Aimee’s thought leadership and help in implementing pilot programs at grantee organizations have contributed to their success. One ongoing project is a pilot program called Roadmap to College, a partnership between Operation Junction in Moraga and Los Medanos College to help job seekers navigate and complete community college and other educational opportunities to advance their skills.

In fostering collaborations like the Bay Area Workforce Fund Collaborative and the Asset Funders’ Network, Aimee’s stewardship at Y&H has helped create a wider safety net for low-income families in the Bay Area through public/private partnerships.
For the past 19 years, Dee Johnson has been committed to helping low-income students and their families in the Oakland Unified School District. As founder and executive director of Lend a Hand Foundation, she and her devoted board and volunteers do just that, providing the extras that these families cannot afford.

Their focus has been on those 35,000 students in Oakland who are enrolled in the Free and Reduced Lunch Program. Since 1997, Lend a Hand has provided 58,000 backpacks filled with school supplies to these students. Its goal this year is to provide 10,000 or more backpacks, doubling its amount on an annual basis. It's a slow-growth process, since the foundation operates with its bootstrap budget of $150,000 raised annually through fundraising.

But the passion and intention of Dee and her small staff couldn't be more dedicated. Ever mindful of ways to serve the needs of low-income families, Dee continues to envision a better future for them and to offer the “hand” to get there. Today, Lend a Hand hosts an annual holiday celebration in December for families living in transitional housing or shelters. In 2011, it developed a Stay in School program for students who have engaged in truancy.

Lend a Hand and Dee Johnson are examples of how the grassroots efforts of dedicated professionals and volunteers can make a difference in their communities.
Barbara Darrow-Blake leads Alameda County Community Food Bank’s fundraising, communications, and community engagement initiatives. This is no small order, considering that the Food Bank will rely on individual contributions, grants, corporate and foundation giving, and special events for three-quarters of its budget of $16 million in 2017. It serves an astonishing one in five county residents, the majority of them children and seniors.

Barbara provides strategic leadership to the 21-person development team, and during her nine years on the job has led her team to increase contributed revenue by 268%. In April, the food bank was named “Food Bank of the Year” by Feeding America, a network of 200 food banks, for its innovative approaches to the alleviation of hunger.

Barbara’s passion for fundraising is fueled by her belief that children, adults, and seniors should not have to worry about where their next meal will come from. She is a supreme networker, sharing the secrets of the trade generously with other organizations and individuals. One of her successes was launching a volunteer challenge grant program, which has raised more than $900,000 from Food Bank volunteers over the past five years. Another is the cultivation of two major donor events—Empty Bowls and Savor the Season—which now raise more than $700,000 annually. Recently, she cofounded the Food Bank’s Donor Development Committee to leverage the expertise of the organization’s passionate board members and community volunteers.
A junior at City Arts and Technical High School in San Francisco, Michelle Gonzalez has joined the ranks of philanthropists at a young age. She is in her second year as a grantmaker in Youth Leadership Institute’s BLING (Building Leaders in Innovative New Giving) program.

It allows youth to engage in philanthropy by leading campaigns, events, and services that address contemporary issues such as educational disparities, food security, environmental and social justice, and more. The program is funded by the San Francisco Department of Children, Youth and Their Families to give youth a seat at the table when decisions are made about funding in their community.

Michelle has a special interest in food justice. Before joining YLI, she and her friends distributed care packages to homeless people in her neighborhood after raising the funds for them at school bake sales. Under BLING, she has funded three youth projects in the community so far and helped grantees put on conferences about neighborhood issues in the Bayview and Mission. She also designed a workshop for an international conference to educate other youth grantmakers on social-justice issues.

Now, she is partnering with adults at YLI to develop an Innovation Fund that will allow the Institute to do philanthropy outside of San Francisco, extending youth-led projects to Oakland, Richmond, San Mateo, and the Central Valley. It’s part of her ambitious vision and drive to create a Bay Area-wide “giving collective” for youth before she sets off to study bioengineering in college.
Founder and former president of Akonadi Foundation, Quinn Delaney and her husband, Wayne Jordan, are passionate about racial justice. (Akonadi is the name in Ghana for the goddess of justice.) They created their family foundation in 2000 to advocate for youth and young adults of color, particularly in Oakland. The board of directors at Akonadi Foundation recently appointed Lateefah Simon as Akonadi Foundation's next president, effective August 2016.

Akonadi Foundation's commitment to racial justice action is deepened through providing long-term investments in organizations and initiatives in Oakland that are on the frontlines of racial justice movement-building. Akonadi takes a proactive approach to the racial strife in America, especially evident in the past year. Akonadi Foundation's mission is to support youth and young adults of color who are most affected by racial bias in the process of healing and constructing new policies and paradigms of racial equity. Through its grantmaking efforts, Akonadi recently effected a unanimous vote by Oakland's School Board to end suspensions and involuntary transfers for “willful defiance” in the classroom, for instance. And it joined with others in the community to successfully advocate for raising the minimum wage in the city—another measure of opportunity.

Akonadi's core grantmaking programs are the Arc Toward Justice Fund and the Beloved Community Fund. Through the Arc Toward Justice Fund, the foundation seeks to stop the criminalization of young people of color through the shifting of public and private resources from punitive strategies to new processes and paths of opportunity.

The Beloved Community Fund is dedicated to fostering the unique forms of cultural expression of people of color and the individual and collective healing work needed to overcome the obstacles to their success in American life.
Fred Levin and Nancy Livingston are dedicated philanthropists and community leaders. Nancy’s major leadership commitment has been with American Conservatory Theater (A.C.T.), where she has been the chair of the board of directors since 2010 and has led two significant fundraising campaigns. She was chair of the public phase of the $30 million Next Generation Campaign to establish an endowment for the theater, and spearheaded the recent $34 million campaign to build The Strand Theater, A.C.T.’s new second stage on Market Street. Nancy also served on the board of Cal Performances at the University of California, Berkeley, where she helped lead the organization’s first capital campaign.

Fred has served as the chair of the board of San Francisco Performances and currently serves on the boards of San Francisco Film Society, the Asian Art Museum of San Francisco, and the San Francisco Symphony. He chairs the development committees at the Museum and the Symphony and is currently serving on the committee to build a new pavilion for the Asian Art Museum. At the Symphony, Fred has been a key leader of major fundraising initiatives, including the Symphony’s $125 million Centennial Campaign.

Since 2002 Fred and Nancy have served as fundraising volunteers with six Bay Area organizations that have raised a combined total of over $300 million through nine campaigns. During this time they have also been active in the annual fundraising efforts for these same organizations, raising tens of millions of additional dollars. As stewards of the Shenson Foundation, a San Francisco foundation started by Fred’s family, Fred and Nancy support over 60 arts, education, and social service organizations annually. Their efforts have resulted in the establishment and growth of endowments, the building of a new theater and museum, and in hundreds of music, dance, and theater productions as well as exhibitions and programs that have enriched the lives of thousands of people in San Francisco and the greater Bay Area.

Together, they are a driving force in the Bay Area philanthropic community, frequently using their philanthropy to challenge and inspire others.
Marcia and John Goldman are among the Bay Area’s most active and committed philanthropic leaders, offering their considerable expertise and time to many of the Bay Area’s most important nonprofit organizations, in addition to the $76 million their foundation has granted since they established it in 1997.

Marcia’s board service includes Jewish Vocational Service, Community Breast Health Project, Cure Autism Now, Planned Parenthood Golden Gate, the UC Davis M.I.N.D. Institute, and, as board chair, TheatreWorks. This commitment is reflected in her professional life devoted to helping autistic children. Her accomplishments include founding New Beginnings Family Workshop, a therapeutic-based program for autistic kids and their families. Additionally, she is the former director of education at Pacific Autism Center for Education. Marcia has written four children’s books featuring her five-pound Yorkie, Lola, a Certified Therapy dog, and together they visit classrooms, libraries, and care facilities.

John was president of the San Francisco Symphony from 2001 to 2012, where he led the $145 million Second Century Campaign; he continues to serve on the board, which he joined in 1996. He was board president of both the Jewish Community Federation and Jewish Family and Children’s Services. His service includes the advisory board of Stanford’s Center for Philanthropy and Civil Society, as a trustee of Swarthmore College and of A.C.T., and, most recently, on the executive committee of the Super Bowl 50 Host Committee. His current commitments include Stanford Health Care, Stanford Live!, and the university’s Graduate School of Business. Additionally, he has been a trustee of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts since his appointment by President Obama in 2014.
Earlier this year, Ira Hirschfield received the Council on Foundations’ Distinguished Service Award, philanthropy’s highest honor. With the Lifetime Achievement Award, we join in the Council’s commendation of this extraordinary leader’s contributions to the field and to the Bay Area community.

Since 1992, Ira has led the Evelyn & Walter Haas, Jr. Fund’s work to advance fundamental rights and opportunities for all people. Throughout his nearly 30 years as president and trustee of the Fund, Ira has built a well-deserved reputation for working collaboratively to achieve “big, bold ideas.”

Ira oversees the Fund’s work on urgent social justice issues such as immigrant rights, gay and lesbian rights, and education equity. Among the Fund’s signature achievements under Ira’s tenure was its leadership in the successful drive for marriage equality in California and across the country. Ira also was deeply involved in the Haas, Jr. Fund’s work alongside the National Park Service and the Golden Gate National Parks Conservancy to transform Crissy Field and the Presidio into the parks they are today.

Prior to joining the Fund, Ira was director of philanthropy with Rockefeller Family and Associates and founder and president of The Philanthropic Collaborative. He also served as executive vice president of the Levi Strauss Foundation, and as president and chairman of the F.B. Heron Foundation.

Ira has served on the boards of the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, the Council on Foundations, Independent Sector, the National Center for Family Philanthropy, the National Center for Responsive Philanthropy, and GuideStar.

HONOREE: Hal Aronson, Ph.D.
SPONSOR: Pacific Gas and Electric Company

Hal Aronson is a co-founder of WE CARE Solar and also a co-creator of the We Share Solar program, through which students learn about solar electricity by building Solar Suitcases destined for schools, orphanages, and refugee camps in need of electricity. Hal started California Youth Energy Services (Rising Sun Energy Center), a service-learning program that has grown to employ 100 youth as energy-efficiency retrofitters. He has been sharing his passion for solar energy with teachers, youth, and electricians for over 16 years.

HONOREE: Josefina Castillo Baltodano, J.D.
SPONSOR: Alameda Health System Foundation

As Alameda Health System Foundation Board of Directors chair for nearly four years, Josefina Castillo Baltodano has demonstrated her commitment to philanthropy. Under her outstanding leadership as campaign committee chair during that time, the foundation received the largest institutional gift and the largest bequest in its history. Josefina is also the founder/director of the University of California, Berkeley’s Executive Leadership Academy, and has served as former president of Marian University, WI, and as a commissioner for the State of California Student Aid Commission.
HONOREE: BLING
SPONSOR: Youth Leadership Institute

Youth Leadership Institute’s BLING initiative is funded by the San Francisco Department of Children, Youth and Families (DCYF). BLING youth philanthropists invest $5,000 grants in other youth’s ideas to address social inequities in San Francisco. The project engages youth leaders ages 13 – 17 who are interested in building youth’s power to address inequities through philanthropic giving. Together, youth philanthropists fund $60,000 annually in two grant cycles. In addition, BLING program officers work directly with funded projects to ensure their impact and sustainability. Congratulations to Michelle Gonzalez and her fellow BLING youth philanthropists!

HONOREES: Mr. and Mrs. William K. Bowes, Jr.
SPONSOR: Asian Art Museum

HONOREE: Lt. Randy Brandt
SPONSOR: George Mark Children’s House

Lt. Randy Brandt has been a police officer for the San Leandro Police Department for 20 years. He is proud to be a third-generation police officer. Nearly 10 years ago, he founded the SLPD SWAT Fitness Challenge. It brings 40 SWAT teams together annually to compete in a day-long endurance race while raising money for the George Mark Children’s House. The event encourages teams to network and build camaraderie.
HONOREE: Lee McEnany Caraher
SPONSOR: KQED

Lee McEnany Caraher has been an invaluable asset to KQED for over eight years—assisting at all levels of fundraising, from Major Gifts to Membership to Corporate Sponsorship. She earned a degree from Carleton College and is the president of Double Forte, an independent public relations and social media firm. Her commitment to KQED and public media, along with her enthusiasm and incredible spirit, have helped KQED reach record-breaking revenue goals. Thank you, Lee, for all that you do for KQED!

HONOREES: Susan Casentini and Kyle Milligan
SPONSOR: Children’s Fairyland

Artists Susan Casentini and Kyle Milligan approach their support of Children’s Fairyland with generosity, creativity, and love. As members of the Lake Merritt Breakfast Club, Fairyland’s founding organization, Kyle and Susan reinstated and now host monthly work parties that provide much-needed volunteer power. They introduced Fairyland to the Milligan Family Foundation, helping us promote early childhood literacy for local families. Their generosity will enable children from low-income communities to purchase books at Fairyland’s annual children’s book festival and families to receive free, year-long Fairyland memberships.

HONOREE: Randy Chun
SPONSOR: Wells Fargo

Randy Chun is VP and Community Affairs Officer for the Wells Fargo Foundation and a 21-year Wells Fargo veteran. During his tenure, he has managed the contribution programs from Central California to the San Francisco Bay Area as well as those in Oregon, Washington State, Idaho, Utah, and New Mexico. Prior to his current role, Randy was part of Wells Fargo’s Business Banking Group. His extensive community engagement includes serving as board member of Northern California Grantmakers and as board chair for Asian Americans / Pacific Islanders in Philanthropy.
HONOREE: Phoebe Cowles
SPONSOR: Saint Francis Foundation

Phoebe Cowles is a former board member of the Saint Francis Foundation at Saint Francis Memorial Hospital. As a long-time friend of the foundation, she has supported numerous hospital projects and programs. As one of the grateful patients of Saint Francis, she is now helping to transform and improve the lives of others through the Phoebe Cowles Center for Pain Management. Phoebe received her BA from Wellesley College, an MA from The American University, and a Ph.D. in European history from Stanford and The Graduate Theological Union, Berkeley, with a specialization in iconography.

HONOREE: Kathleen Darling and Susan Hendrickson
SPONSOR: Edgewood Center for Children and Families

Edgewood Center for Children and Families honors Kathleen Darling and Susan Hendrickson, co-presidents of the Edgewood Auxiliary for their outstanding leadership during the 50th Edgewood Fair held April 28 and 29. For this year’s event, they led efforts that raised over $450,000 in support of our work, which benefits more than 7,000 children, youth, and their families in San Francisco and San Mateo counties. Over 700 guests attended the event.

HONOREE: Dr. Marc Dollinger
SPONSOR: San Francisco State University

Dr. Marc Dollinger holds the Richard and Rhoda Goldman Endowed Chair in Jewish Studies and Social Responsibility at San Francisco State University. He has authored Quest for Inclusion: Jews and Liberalism in Modern America, published by Princeton University Press; California Jews, co-edited with Ava Kahn, and American Jewish History: A Primary Source Reader, both published by Brandeis University Press. His next book is entitled, Is It Good for the Jews? Black Power and the 1960s.
Tina Eshaghpour is the director of evaluation and organizational learning at The California Wellness Foundation, where she is responsible for fostering a culture of continual learning, improvement, and innovation. Prior to joining Cal Wellness, Tina directed her own philanthropic and nonprofit consulting practice, specializing in helping foundations bridge the gap between philanthropy and underserved populations. She has also led the Women’s Foundation of California’s environmental health and justice program and pioneered efforts to increase awareness and funding to support the health of low-income families and agricultural workers in California’s Central Valley.

Crickette Glad has been a Glide Memorial Church member since 2011. She has spearheaded multiple fundraising campaigns, hosted events, and provided strong support to staff, congregation, and program participants at this iconic San Francisco institution. She is proud to be a founding member of Glide’s Legacy Circle and has chaired its fund development committee since 2015. Crickette is also a renowned artist, deacon, and successful small-business owner and change agent.

As an Oakland Museum of California trustee, past board chair, and long-time volunteer, Lance Gyorfi has exemplified civic leadership and passionate philanthropy. In addition to being a star ambassador and advocate, he has worked creatively and tirelessly to guide the museum through several building projects and the development of new forms of private-public partnerships with the City of Oakland. Lance first became involved with OMCA when he was an executive with Chevron. Now retired from his distinguished career, he devotes himself to organizations that support building better communities.
HONOREE: Michael Hannigan
SPONSOR: Lend A Hand Foundation

Michael Hannigan is president of Give Something Back Office Supplies, one of California’s largest business-to-business office-supply companies. Founded in Oakland in 1991 and modeled on Newman’s Own food company, GSB’s profits are donated to nonprofit groups selected by its customers and employees. Give Something Back is a Founding B-Corporation and was the first to convert to a California Benefit Corporation in 2012. It has garnered numerous awards, including Corporate Grant Maker of the Year, US SBA Business of the Year, and Most Generous Company in America, from Paul Newman and John Kennedy Jr.

HONOREE: Sophie Middlebrook Hayward
SPONSOR: San Francisco Parks Alliance

Sophie Hayward is the director of policy and legislative affairs at the Mayor’s Office of Housing and Community Development. Before joining MOHCD, she worked for eight years at the San Francisco Planning Department. As a LEED-accredited city planner, she served in numerous capacities, including as legislative and policy analyst and as a historic-preservation planner. Prior to moving to the public sector, Sophie worked as an architectural conservator, as a Getty Conservation Fellow for international projects, and for the New York City firm Jablonski Berkowitz Conservation.

HONOREE: Andrew Hoybach
SPONSOR: Bay Area Discovery Museum

The Bay Area Discovery Museum honors Andrew Hoybach for his many contributions to the museum. Andrew is a Certified Public Accountant and partner at Ernst & Young. From 2010 to 2016, he has served on the board of the Bay Area Discovery Museum, lending his time and expertise as the Museum’s treasurer from 2012 to 2016 and as a member of the executive committee from 2011 to 2016. Throughout his tenure, Andrew exhibited selfless dedication and commitment to furthering the Museum’s mission. Thank you, Andrew!
HONOREE: Keith Kamisugi
SPONSOR: Leftwich Event Specialists, Inc.

Keith Kamisugi is the director of communications at the Equal Justice Society, an Oakland-based racial justice nonprofit. He is a founding board member of the San Francisco Japantown Foundation and previously served on the boards of some of the Bay Area’s premier Asian American nonprofits, such as Chinese for Affirmative Action, Asian Law Caucus, Chinatown Community Development Center, Asian American Theater Company, the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California, and the Fred T. Korematsu Institute. Keith received AAJA’s national award for Member of the Year in 2004, the only non-journalist/media professional to receive that recognition.

HONOREE: Maja Kristin
SPONSOR: GLIDE

Maja Kristin has a passion for bridging differences, creative problem solving, impact investing, and philanthropy. She currently serves on the leadership council of Convergence Center for Policy Resolution (www.convergencepolicy.org), the board of trustees of World Affairs, Global Philanthropy Forum (www.worldaffairs.org), and the leadership council of Facing History and Ourselves (www.facinghistory.org). Maja supports multiple organizations with wide-ranging projects, each with an eye to collaborative problem solving. A former litigator, she pioneered sexual assault cases against the Catholic Church. She was selected by TIME magazine as one of America’s “Top Ten Women Lawyers.”

HONOREE: Nancy Lenvin
SPONSOR: Alameda County Community Food Bank

Nancy Lenvin exemplifies the “Community” in the Alameda County Community Food Bank’s name. Having worked in Alameda County and learning it wasn’t as well-resourced as surrounding areas, Nancy became a devoted contributor, advocate, and volunteer for our mission. With a milestone birthday last year, Nancy celebrated in the most selfless of ways: by refusing presents and asking her friends and family to donate to the Food Bank. Nancy raised enough to provide more than 35,000 meals for our community—while introducing her own friends and family to the Food Bank’s work.
HONOREE: Margaret Coe Light
SPONSOR: Save the Redwoods League

Margaret (Peggy) Light is vice president of Rite Engineering & Manufacturing Corporation in Los Angeles, California. Carrying on a family legacy, she has served on the council and board of Save the Redwoods League since 2005. We honor Peggy for her exceptional leadership as chair of the League’s Centennial Task Force in anticipation of our 100th Anniversary in 2018. Peggy’s generosity and commitment to protecting and restoring California’s iconic redwood forests and connecting people with their peace and beauty are an inspiration to us all.

HONOREE: Colin Lind
SPONSOR: Golden Gate National Parks Conservancy

A Parks Conservancy member since 1999, Colin Lind joined the Conservancy’s board of trustees in 2003 and is the current board chair. He has served on the executive, finance, investment, new ventures, trustees, and capital campaign committees. Importantly, Colin is the energetic volunteer leader of One Tam, a partnership to combine resources and expertise to ensure a healthy future for beloved Mt. Tamalpais. Throughout our 80,000 acres of parkland, Colin is an avid supporter and user of the trails.

HONOREE: Alexandra Morgan
SPONSOR: Iris Fluellen and Susan Corlett

Alexandra Morgan is CEO of Family House, providing a home away from home for families of children with cancer and other life-threatening illnesses. Earlier, she held administrative and development positions at the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco and the Asian Art Museum. She was also executive director of the Foundation for Religious Understanding, associate director of Summerbridge National, and director of campaigns at Golden Gate University. She is currently on the advisory boards of USF’s Leo T. McCarthy Center for Public Service and Common Good, Kids and Art, and There with Care.
Mimi Mugler is the czarina of Girl Scout cookie sales. We honor Mimi on behalf of all the mothers who cannot walk through their living room for the cases and cases of cookies blocking their paths. Mimi is a CPA (Certified Parental Accountant) for the thousands of dollars raised and tracked. Mimi worked tirelessly on the Berkeley Sakai Girl Scout Exchange Group fundraising, holding garage sales and lemonade stands, selling Christmas wreathes and candy, and attending every winter craft fair in the Bay Area for the last three years. GO SCOUTS (and Scout moms)!

“Henny” Neys is a director of the Frank A. Campini Foundation and president of the Netherlands Benevolent Society, providing assistance to needy Dutch emigrants. She is also president and founder of the Netherlands American Cultural Heritage Organization, supporting Dutch immigrants of Indonesian descent. She established the Alan Neys Memorial Fund to aid elderly citizens of Dutch descent in Indonesia and travels annually to assist these individuals in remote, poor villages. She has received the Dutch-American Heritage Award and was decorated for her distinguished service by the Netherlands’ Order of Orange-Nassau.

Mary Powell has been a lifelong contributor to the San Francisco community. She participated in the founding of two schools—San Francisco Day School and Peter’s Place Nursery School—and has served as director of development at San Francisco Opera as well as vice president of public policy and external affairs at California Pacific Medical Center and the California Healthcare System. She has served as a board member of many organizations, including CUESA, the SF Jewish Home for the Aged, SF University High School, and the McCarthy Center for Public Service and the Common Good at USF.
Connie and Bill Ring have long supported Episcopal Senior Communities, with Bill serving as master of ceremonies for the Celtic Cup Golf Tournament. The Rings have a history of philanthropy through board involvement with St. Francis High School, the Commonwealth Club (Connie is on the Gala Committee), and the Basic Fund. They also support Catholic Charities CYO of San Francisco, Boys and Girls Club of the Peninsula, the San Francisco Symphony, and the Knights of Malta. Connie was a member of the National Charity League and currently mentors students at Menlo Atherton High School.

Now retired, Beth has worked in philanthropy for more than 35 years, with a priority to “move money” toward strengthening social justice movements nationally. When Quinn Delaney and Wayne Jordan decided to establish a family foundation, the couple asked Beth to help with their vision and grantmaking process. Together, they conducted listening circles with key social justice activists, consulted other progressive grantmakers, and paved the roadmap for addressing structural racism as Akonadi Foundation’s core value. Beth currently serves as Lia Fund’s senior philanthropic adviser and also serves on the board of Asian Health Services.

Beth Sawi has been instrumental in Alameda County Community Food Bank’s success for nearly two decades. She served on the Food Bank’s board of directors from 2003 to 2013, including as president from 2006 to 2008. She now serves on the Food Bank’s donor development committee. Beth co-chaired the Food Bank’s capital campaign committee, which succeeded in giving the Food Bank outright ownership of its facility. She also established the first matching grant for the Food Bank’s annual “Together We Can” fundraising campaign, which has been extremely successful in engaging volunteers as contributors.
Nader Shabahangi is the CEO and co-founder of AgeSong, an assisted-living community for seniors that has six locations in San Francisco and the East Bay. An author and licensed psychotherapist, Nader combines his academic passion and scientific talents to create programs that care for the elderly more comprehensively. He teaches “eldership” workshops in Europe and the United States, exploring the difference between growing “old” and growing “into” the role of an elder. Five years ago, Nader accepted CEI’s invitation to be the first trustee of its new fundraising foundation, Fund for Elders’ Independence.

San Francisco Opera Board Director Ruth Short personifies the effective approach development staff and volunteers can take in encouraging legacy gifts. Mostly simple bequests in a will, such requests are strengthening the future of the more than 60 nonprofits Legacy Program Specialists has served. Our clients work with volunteers like Ruth to leverage their staff time. In addition, Ruth leads a committee of a half dozen other volunteers at Legacy Program Specialists in making legacy asks one-on-one and securing gift commitments from qualified leads.

Camilla and George Smith have five grown children and 11 grandchildren. Camilla has a master’s degree in education from Columbia University and has been a teacher and editor most of her life. Camilla believes that where much is given, much is expected. Because she has been very lucky in her life, she wants to provide opportunities for others, especially educational opportunities. So, she supports libraries, schools, and specifically music and science education and public education through media. She applauds and supports the institutions that share this mission, like San Francisco Performances.
HONOREES: Radha Stern and Gary Maxworthy
SPONSOR: SF – Marin Food Bank

Radha Stern and Gary Maxworthy are enthusiastic supporters of the SF – Marin Food Bank and describe themselves as “entwined in their full commitment to the Food Bank.” Gary started volunteering in 1994 and developed the “Farm to Family” program that now distributes fresh produce direct from packers and growers to families in need across California. The couple have been generous donors and fundraising volunteers for the Food Bank for many years, and their love of the Food Bank runs so deep they even celebrated their wedding in the Food Bank warehouse.

HONOREE: Lynn Mellen Wendell
SPONSOR: Golden Gate National Parks Conservancy

A 20-year member of the Parks Conservancy, Lynn Wendell was elected to the Conservancy’s board of trustees in 2005 and currently serves as board co-vice chair as well as chair of the development committee. She also has brought her talents and energy to the executive, trustees, and capital campaign committees and her meaningful commitment to Tam Lands—a partnership to combine resources and expertise to ensure a healthy future for Mt. Tamalpais. Importantly, Lynn has been an enthusiastic member of the advisory council of the Parks Conservancy Leaders Circle, cultivating community leadership gifts to the Conservancy.

HONOREES: Marya Wintroub, Anne Wintroub-Hansen, and Augie Hansen
SPONSOR: That Man May See

The Augie Fund at That Man May See provides prescription glasses and specialized contact lenses for children from low-income families—with zero red tape! Inspiration followed young Augie’s treatment at UCSF Ophthalmology for amblyopia. Recognizing the expense of sight devices, the family set out to meet the needs of patients with inadequate resources. That Man May See’s Augie Fund serves UCSF, the Priscilla Chan and Mark Zuckerberg San Francisco General Hospital and Trauma Center, UCSF Benioff Children’s Hospital Oakland, and See Well to Learn, a program of Prevent Blindness Northern California.
In Tribute

We remember the donors, volunteers, nonprofit and foundation staff who passed away between September 1, 2015 and August 31, 2016. The following individuals represent the many who contributed to the Bay Area philanthropic community. These individuals truly did change the world with a giving heart.
Wilkes Bashford (1933 – 2016)

A legend for changing San Franciscans’ sense of style, Mr. Bashford had an impact on the community well beyond fashion. Often collaborating with other civic leaders, such as Charlotte Shultz, he hosted events for community institutions such as San Francisco General Hospital and San Francisco Ballet. He hosted benefit fashion shows for Partners Ending Domestic Abuse and Muttville Senior Dog Rescue. Most recently, he was the president of the War Memorial & Performing Arts Center board of trustees and was dedicated to the creation of a war memorial, titled “Passage of Remembrance.” Elegant, charming, and generous, his passing leaves a hole in the fabric of old-school San Francisco.

Kathleen Hellman Black (1937 – 2016)

Mrs. Black, a member of the pioneering Hellman family, served on the board of the SPCA for three decades. She played a large role in developing its “no kill” policy, which has been adopted by animal shelters nationwide. She was a generous and hands-on donor, volunteering every week to play with the animals and walk the dogs. For about 35 years, Mrs. Black stabled and cared for horses who were retired from the San Francisco Police Mounted Unit. Mrs. Black served on the boards of ARCS, the Little Jim Club at CPMC, the Bear Valley Music Festival, and Temple Emanu-El, where she helped organize the synagogue’s 150th anniversary celebration.

Ms. Carroll told her daughter, Kate Berenson, that she wouldn't ask people for money for a million dollars, yet she raised more than that during her lifetime by bringing people together for a common cause. She brought her passion for books to the causes she supported, serving as president of the Friends of the Berkeley Public Library and facilitating the opening of the Friends’ first bookstore. She co-chaired the book department at the White Elephant Sale of the Oakland Museum Women’s Board, for which she volunteered for 27 years. In 2011, at age 80, she co-chaired the sale itself, raising a record $1.6 million to support museum programs.
Betty Cohen  (1943 – 2016)

Ms. Cohen taught and led hundreds of workshops and classes on infant and child development, parenting, and improving the quality of child care—reaching thousands of parents and child-care providers. Renowned as a connector of people, she spent her life serving families across the economic spectrum. Her professional home for more than 35 years as executive director was BANANAS, a child-care resource and referral organization in Oakland. Ms. Cohen was named California’s “Social Worker of the Year” in 1996. She spent her life helping working families from all backgrounds and serving thousands of families across the economic spectrum.

Delia Fleishhacker Ehrlich  (1930 – 2016)

Mrs. Ehrlich was a fourth-generation San Franciscan who continued her family's tradition of contributing to the cultural life of the city. She was trustee of the Fleishhacker Foundation and its president for ten years. She also worked at Macy's, establishing its personal shopping service and running its community relations in seven states for eleven years. She managed Macy's volunteer program and helped establish Macy's Passport, a fashion show benefiting AIDS/HIV causes. Mrs. Ehrlich supported many organizations including Coro, the Little Jim Club, the Magic Theatre, the Museum of Performance and Design, the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, and the San Francisco Opera.

Peter deCourcy Hero  (1942 – 2016)

A visionary, Mr. Hero was instrumental in helping technology tycoons channel their millions into charitable giving. He re-branded the Community Foundation of Santa Clara County as the Community Foundation Silicon Valley, then oversaw its merger with a San Mateo County foundation to become Silicon Valley Community Foundation. He was vice president of external relations at Caltech and served on the boards of numerous other foundations. He strongly supported organizations with a social impact, such as The Hero Group, which created a social-impact investment option for the National Philanthropic Trust. He also developed a three-year strategic plan for Stanford University's design school and worked with Santa Clara University to bring together Silicon Valley donors in a two-year philanthropy initiative.
Leah Jones  (Died in 2016)

Born and raised in the New York – New Jersey area, Ms. Jones was development director for the St. Vincent de Paul Society of San Francisco. Before St. Vincent’s, her career spanned the nonprofit and corporate sectors. She worked in fundraising and marketing for the Fred Finch Youth Center, the United Negro College Fund, American Cancer Society, March of Dimes, Bank of America, and Charles Schwab Corp. Ms. Jones served as an advisory council representative and volunteer for many Bay Area charities that serve children with limited means, including Raphael House and Young Dreams Foundation, which was founded by former San Francisco 49er Bryant Young.

Garrick Lew  (1950 – 2016)

Mr. Lew, an ardent champion of civil rights and social justice, staunchly defended those unable to defend themselves. He fought to establish an ethnic studies program at U. C. Berkeley and, while a law student, helped establish the Asian Law Caucus. Notably, he also demonstrated in the Third World Strike, helped establish youth organizations in Oakland’s Chinatown, fought the eviction of tenants from the International Hotel, and provided pro-bono services to demonstrators arrested in anti-Vietnam War protests. Mr. Lew co-founded Minami, Tomine and Lew, among the nation’s first Asian-American law firms, and served on the federal court’s Criminal Justice Panel for 30 years, handling hundreds of cases for indigent clients.

Putnam Livermore  (1922 – 2015)

Mr. Livermore devoted his life to California landscapes. He was co-founder of the Trust for Public Land, the first attorney for The Nature Conservancy in the Western United States, and a leader in conservation law. Known for his kindness and consideration of others, Mr. Livermore helped keep the forces of development at bay as he worked to preserve open space. He proved instrumental in the formation of 11 California state parks and natural reserves. He also served on the Sierra Club Board and the Save-the-Redwoods League, and worked to preserve the summit of Russian Hill in San Francisco.
James Louie (1925 – 2016)

Mr. Louie was born and raised in Seattle, Washington. After graduating from Oberlin College, he relocated to San Francisco, where he met and married Katherine Lee, raising four children in Berkeley. He enjoyed a long and distinguished career volunteering with many Bay Area, state, and national organizations, including the American Association for Affirmative Action, the California School Personnel Commissioners Association, and the UNITAS Berkeley Campus Ministry. Mr. Louie was founder and chair of Berkeley Unified School District’s Asian Task Force, a trustee of the Chinese Hospital in San Francisco, chair of the Merit Commission, and chair of the San Francisco Chinatown YMCA.

Phoebe Ferris McCoy (1919 – 2015)

Ms. McCoy served the Society for Asian Art as president (1973 – 1977) and was a member for 46 years. She founded the Arts of Asia Lecture Series, a rigorous docent-training program that continues to this day. Ms. McCoy served on the Asian Art Commission from 1976 to 1985 and was elected its chair in 1978. She was also an Asian Art Museum docent for 40 years. She was a trustee of the Joel E. Ferris Foundation, and guided and funded many civic organizations. She was active at Sunny Hills Orphanage, Junior League, Campfire Girls, St. John’s Church, and the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco.

Sylvia McLaughlin (1916 – 2016)

Ms. McLaughlin was the co-founder of Save the Bay in 1961. She served on the board, gave and raised money, and inspired thousands to join her in protecting the Bay—all of this in the days before the Clean Water Act and environmental impact reports. She organized, spoke, and appeared on radio and TV about protecting thousands of acres of wetlands from development, influencing the State Legislature to create the Bay Conservation and Development Commission to protect the Bay for generations to come.
Laurence Paradis  (1959 – 2016)

Mr. Paradis was a talented and accomplished trailblazer for disability rights. As co-founder and executive director of Disability Rights Advocates (DRA), a nonprofit law firm, he tirelessly broke down barriers across the nation for people with disabilities, securing access to healthcare, employment, transportation, and education. A wheelchair user himself, Mr. Paradis was a steadfast mentor to young attorneys—including many with disabilities—who pursued public-interest law. In honor of his award-winning legal work, DRA has established the Larry Paradis Legacy Fund to support civil rights cases with the highest impact and risk.

Peter Rodriguez  (1926 – 2016)

Mr. Rodriguez, founder of The Mexican Museum in San Francisco in 1975, embodied its mission to keep Mexican, Mexican-American, Chicano, and Latino art at the forefront of the art world. He was a self-taught artist who also worked in advertising and fashion. As the museum’s first director and curator, he provided a lasting vision for the institution, establishing it among the first professionally run, ethnic-based art museums in the nation. He continued to create art until a few days before his 90th birthday.

Gerald B. “Jerry” Rosenstein  (1927 – 2016)

Mr. Rosenstein was a Holocaust survivor who told his story after decades of silence, a businessman with keen financial acumen, and a humanitarian who cared deeply about community building, the arts, the environment, and human rights. He served on the boards of Jewish Family and Children’s Services, San Francisco Performances, the Merola Opera Program, and the Holocaust Center of Northern California. He was a member of ACLU, the Human Rights Campaign, and Human Rights Watch. Almost 50 nonprofits are the recipients of his generous bequests. While we will miss his ebullience, his good works will be remembered for many years to come.

After rising through the ranks of three Jesuit university administrations in the Midwest, Fr. John Schlegel was selected to be the 26th president of the University of San Francisco. As president (1991 – 2000), he launched the “Building a Bold Tomorrow” fundraising initiative that raised $92 million. During his tenure, the university’s endowment grew by $111 million, and the campus of USF was transformed through renovations to the Gleeson Library and Xavier Hall, the planning and construction of the new Dorrance Zief Law Library and Loyola Village, and award-winning landscaping. Fr. Schlegel is remembered for his commitment to multicultural and interfaith understanding, elaborated in the book he co-authored, Building Wisdom’s House.

Douglas Shorenstein  (1955 – 2015)

Chair and CEO of Shorenstein Properties, Mr. Shorenstein was an environmentalist and board member of the Environmental Defense Fund. He founded the Walter Shorenstein Media and Democracy Fellow program at the Kennedy School of Government’s Shorenstein Center at Harvard University in honor of his father. He was on the board of Vanderbilt University, the executive council of UCSF Medical Center, the advisory board of Harvard’s Joan Shorenstein Center on Media, Politics, and Public Policy, and the advisory board of Yale School of Management. Mr. Shorenstein chaired the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, and was inducted into the Bay Area Council’s Bay Area Business Hall of Fame in 2011.

Mary Perry Smith  (1926 – 2015)

Ms. Smith’s life was distinguished through her dedication to education, black cultural heritage, and community service. While teaching geometry at Oakland Tech, she launched the MESA program to encourage and support mathematics, engineering, and science achievement among historically underrepresented students in these fields. Today MESA serves nearly 30,000 students across the country. Ms. Smith was an active volunteer and board member with many organizations, most notably Oakland Museum Women’s Board, Oakland Museum of California, and the Black Filmmaker’s Hall of Fame, which began as a project of the Oakland Museum’s Cultural and Ethics Affairs Guild in 1974. Her tireless efforts greatly influenced the path of numerous individuals and organizations.
Douglas Tompkins  (1943 – 2015)

World-renowned adventurer, noted conservationist, and founder of the North Face and Esprit clothing lines, Mr. Tompkins left the business world to “pay his rent for living on the planet.” Passionate about nature and beauty, he devoted the last 25 years of his life to environmental activism. His love for the natural world resulted in the creation of five national parks in South America, with six more in progress. He and his wife, Kris, have protected 2.2 million acres—more than any other couple. His legacy continues, as Tompkins Conservation is dedicated to land conversation through parks creation, the restoration of ecosystems, ecological agriculture, and environmental activism.

About the Association of Fundraising Professionals

The 30,000 members of AFP are respected throughout the world for advancing ethical and effective fundraising. The Golden Gate Chapter, one of the largest in the U.S., works to strengthen the Bay Area social sector by providing professional development to those charged with raising the resources that move missions into action. AFP Golden Gate is deeply grateful for the generous support from foundations, corporations, and individuals that make possible its educational programs and contributions to the field.

Congratulations

Our deepest gratitude to the extraordinary individuals and organizations being honored today for the vision and leadership they bring to improving our communities.
The ACLU honors social justice pioneer Ira Hirschfield and racial justice advocate Akonadi Foundation for their vision and commitment.

We are proud to stand with you!

Community Music Center salutes our friends, Nancy Livingston and Fred Levin, and thanks the Shenson Foundation for its longstanding support of the Shenson Faculty Concert Series at CMC.

Empowering changemakers to accelerate their impact in a whole new way
Thank you for your time and dedication

Congratulations to all of this year’s National Philanthropy Day award recipients and Spirit of Philanthropy honorees.

Stanford Health Care congratulates Marcia and John Goldman and the other 2016 National Philanthropy Day Honorees

Healing humanity through science and compassion one patient at a time.

Great leaders inspire our communities

In every community, there are people who can inspire others to work for positive change. True leaders know how to forge a consensus and create a lasting legacy of success.

AFP Golden Gate, it’s an honor to recognize you.
Our congratulations go out to Ira S. Hirschfield, President and Trustee of the Haas Jr. Fund, in recognition of his receipt of the Lifetime Achievement Award at National Philanthropy Day. We honor his outstanding contributions to communities in the Bay Area, his work on social justice issues, and his leadership in the philanthropic and nonprofit arena.

Promote Legacy Giving

Only 5% of Americans have made a legacy gift ... most often done through a will.

5%! Why? Most of your nonprofit’s supporters have never been asked or thought about it.

What a great opportunity!

Congratulations from the San Francisco Art Department to the 2016 National Philanthropy Day Honorees.

I strive to make my work have intelligent design that not only informs and organizes your content but delights your audiences, thus becoming memorable.

CONGRATULATIONS to our fellow awardees!

We are honored to be in your company.

Fred Levin & Nancy Livingston,
